

DON'T BLAME HER

For she cannot help it. Women are often cross, irritable, hysterical, and declare they are driven to distraction at the slightest provocation.

Men cannot understand why this should be so. To them it is a mystery because in nine times out of ten this condition is caused by a serious feminine derangement.

A remedy is necessary which acts directly upon the organs afflicted, restoring a healthy normal condition to the feminine system, which will quickly dispel all hysterical, nervous and irritable conditions. Such is

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

The following letter serves to prove this fact.

Mrs. Mattie Copenhaver, 315 So. 21st St., Parsons, Kan., writes: "For two years I suffered from the worst form of feminine ill, until I was almost driven frantic. Nothing but morphine would relieve me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me health and happiness and made me a well woman."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ill, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

MISS FARRAR TO SHUN US

AMERICANS HAVE NO ARTISTIC APPRECIATION, SAYS THE DIVA.

Besides Which Kaiser Has Forgiven Her for Making His August Son Fall in Love, and Has Chosen Her as Court Songbird.

Berlin, April 5.—Geraldine Farrar—she of beauty and voice and charm sufficient to tempt the wildest critics, prince from the path of strict adherence to his imperial knitting—has now, as going back to America. Address there in America, the Kaiser's artistic sensibility, do—how shall I say?—border mutual shyness. And besides, they haven't any crown prince. It has been suggested that these seriously practical Americans grow enough of the last for home consumption in the Philippines, but Miss Farrar—she of an unknown town in New England—was interested and hasn't any faith in the constitutional experiment.

The Kaiser, to revert back to a delicate subject, has quite forgotten about his eldest son's American girl propensities in the glory of that great soprano and has nominated Geraldine Farrar as imperial court singer. The appointment probably means a permanent desertion of her native land by this charming singer, who fore-shadowed something of this kind last November when she said in an interview that Americans were wanting in artistic appreciation. She added that she never intended to sink anywhere else except here in Germany because in Germany—ah! they had their Wagner and they have their Beethoven—and their Kaiser. Of course, never forgetting his son.

The unfortunate incident with Friedrich Wilhelm may have slipped from the memories of some. At any rate, when Miss Farrar appeared in Germany some four seasons ago with her beauty and her distinctive voice, she scored an immediate success and was asked by the emperor to sing in the imperial theater at Potsdam, an invitation which the father of Frederick came and saw and was conquered. He was in love.

"Frauheim, ich liebe Sie," he said, or is alleged to have said. Love is the same in all languages on the principle that a rose is sweet by any name. Miss Farrar understood.

It might not have been so sad but for Die Welt, an officious German paper which insisted on printing all the details of the affair of the Kaiser's son and that low-born American diva. The World—for that is what "Die Welt" means in the language of the Fatherland—added many delightful details of the Prince's infatuation and hinted vaguely at salacious morsels unprintable. Die Welt was really sensational about it, and the Kaiser didn't like it a bit. The emperor was in a rage and the father of Miss Farrar emulated him with American vigor.

Miss Farrar sued for defamation, and the pretty must was out in all its splendor. Why the Kaiser's son had even grown so familiar as to drop his formality and possibly had wild parties!

"Ich liebe Dich, mein Franklin!" As Scheffel might say, "Da hat nicht sollen sein!" (It was not to be.)

But now Friedrich Wilhelm is wedded and settled and Miss Farrar is forgiven.

This is the gist of the story of Geraldine Farrar, who is a daughter of Sir Farrar, once a noteworthy American baseball player. Miss Farrar began life as the girl mascot of her father's team. She is getting on a portion of it as the adored of a future emperor.

CRITICIZE MR. OWEN

SENATOR BEING QUESTIONED ON HIS VOTE IN FAVOR OF ALDRICH BILL.

Washington, April 5.—Special.—The disposition to criticize Senator Owen for his vote in favor of the Aldrich bill seems to be general in the Oklahoma colony of this city and the belief is general is that Senator Owen made a mistake when he cast his vote for that measure, yet the fact remains that it was Senator Owen who beared the brunt in its own defense when he formed Senator Aldrich to accept an amendment to his bill which increased the reserve of country banks, one of the most important items in the bill. The unlimited extension of normal national bank circulation, which was also one of the obnoxious features of the bill was also eliminated before it finally passed the senate and the same is true of the provision that proposed to create a market for railroad bonds by making railroad bonds a basis for currency. These changes were not of the liking of Aldrich or the McKim group of Senators to be true, but they were nevertheless made and for the simple reason that the bill would never have passed the senate had they not been made.

Senator Owen in his maiden effort in the senate on the currency bill delivered last February announced that he would probably have to vote for the bill because it seemed to be the only measure that stood any chance of becoming a law at this session and thus alleviate conditions in Oklahoma and elsewhere. In the light of this fact the Owen vote should not come as a big surprise. Politicians it is true think that Owen would have made a better hit if he had opposed the bill, but there are times when men rise above politics and selfish motives and become statesmen. Owen it seems voted the way he saw fit. Gore voted the way he saw fit. He opposed the bill and that is what the other members of the Oklahoma congressional delegation propose to do in the house, oppose the bill and bring about its defeat if possible.

But this will be no easy thing to do. There seems to be a kind of understanding between the powers that be in congress and the McKim Cannon and Aldrich that the Aldrich bill is to become a law at this session of congress and of course that settles it. When these two men get behind a bill it is a case to a thousand shots to use race birds parlance that the measure will become a law.

Senator Owen was one of three democrats who voted for the bill Johnson and Teller were the other two democrats. It will also be remembered that ringing resolutions were adopted at the recent democratic convention held at Muskogee, in which the Aldrich bill was denounced as a vile and pernicious measure drawn in the interest of the money frame of the west.

AN EDITOR'S TROUBLES.

Threatened With Dynamite—Edits Paper in Cell in Jail.

Muskogee, Okla., April 5.—Sir, on the side of his bunk in a steel cage in the county jail here, E. I. Strode, editor of the Mid-Day Messenger, a daily newspaper, continues to grind out copy and his paper comes out every day despite the fact that Prosecuting Attorney Crump and Sheriff R. B. Ramsey have turned down all bonds that have been offered for Strode's release.

In a recent issue the Mid-Day Messenger accused Crump with compounding a felony, the reference being to certain prosecutions relative to gamblers and saloon men. Crump swore out the warrant himself. It is claimed here tonight that the gamblers of the town have sworn a vendetta against the Messenger because of the part it took in the city election and that the gamblers openly declare that Strode will remain in jail and that the paper will be put out of business if dynamite has to be used on the plant.

It is also said, and a gambler made both statements to a man whom he did not know, that as soon as the Messenger is done for the Times-Herald, which also made a bitter fight on the gamblers, must go.

The matter has caused a great deal of excitement here. There is a good deal of criticism because the county officers have failed to accept the bond offered by Strode and there is also much criticism against the attack which the newspaper made on the prosecuting attorney.

BACK FROM UNKNOWN

MIKKELSEN EXPEDITION FOUND NO ADDITIONAL CONTINENT.

After a Quarrel With Leffingwell, Mikkelson Pressed on to Beaufort Sea and Found the Continental Shelf, but Had to Turn Back.

Seattle, Wash., April 5.—Captain Sinar Mikkelson, who jointly commanded the Anglo-Polar expedition which sought to find an undiscovered continent in the Beaufort sea, arrived from the North today on the Yucatan Captain Mikkelson's vessel, the Duchess of Bedford, was lost in the ice pack near Flaxman Island a year ago.

Ernest Deaven Leffingwell, who, with Captain Mikkelson, commanded the expedition, remained at Flaxman Island to continue his scientific work. Captain Mikkelson started October 14 from Flaxman Island and made the journey along the northern shores of Alaska to Nome, arriving at the latter place January 2. He left Nome with a companion January 18, and journeyed with dog sledges up the Yukon river to Fort Gibson, and came out by the way of Fairbanks and Valdez.

Captain Mikkelson's expedition traced the continental shelf in the Beaufort sea and ascertained that if land does lie beyond the sea it is an independent continent. He has obtained information concerning ocean currents which will be invaluable to him when he makes his next attempt to attain the unknown continent.

Captain Mikkelson made use of a new idea in polar travel by which he was able to save ninety pounds weight on his sledges. In the tedious march over the low hummocks the party frequently came upon water. Captain Mikkelson had none of the Equimax kayaks of which Dr. Nansen made such good use, but instead, he made his boats when the occasion arose. He strapped a waterproof tarpaulin beneath his sledges and improvised a raft which floated.

The sledge expedition went further into the unexplored Beaufort sea than had been planned by the Royal Geographical society of London, and the American Geographical society of New York, which directed the expedition. The explorers found the continental shelf and had learned that beyond this shelf there was water of great depth. It was ascertained that the Beaufort sea was not a shallow basin, as had been supposed.

The journey north was approximately along the one hundred and forty-ninth meridian. Soundings were taken occasionally. At a distance of sixty-four miles from land they were unable to touch bottom with a 320-fathom line. This indicated that the continental shelf had been passed and one of their objects had been accomplished. They crossed the seventy-second parallel, when the ice conditions prevented further travel. The return journey was made under the most trying conditions. They landed near Cape Hallett, May 3.

SENSATIONAL INCIDENT.

Former Cashier Refuses to Testify Concerning Certain Alleged Notes.

Oklahoma City, April 4.—A sensational plot was reached this morning in the case of the defunct Capital National bank of Guthrie, now on trial here. Testimony concerning the charge that as much as $50,000 in fictitious notes were used to mislead the bank examiner was under way. When J. H. Edmondson, former cashier of the bank was put on the stand, he was asked by the prosecution what he knew about it. He refused to answer. The state insisted that Edmondson answer. The defense became excited, exclaiming that the witness could not answer any question that might incriminate him. The court ruled that he need not answer.
